

Snapshot: Life After ICC

Darren & Susan Wall

Programme:

BA Theology,
and Diploma of Higher Education in Theology

Current Ministry:

Darren is Cambodia Field Business Manager with OMF International, and Susan is a teacher at Hope International School, Phnom Penh

Why did you choose to study at ICC?

We wanted to incorporate some cross cultural studies and overseas mission emphasis and Glasgow was a helpful location given family support in the area.

“The broader theological perspectives gained at ICC have helped us to operate in a multi-cultural team where theological opinions do, on occasion, differ.”

What did you like about the programme?

The modular structure, with options to take different courses was particularly good - we were able to spread 1 year of studies over 1½ years using this structure.

College life enabled us to meet students from all over the world which was a very enriching experience.

What work or ministry are you involved in now?

We are serving in Cambodia, primarily in support roles and administration. Susan also teaches at Hope International School.

How did your studies help you in your current work / ministry?

Our studies provided us with a sound theological platform from which to engage in a context very different from the UK situation.

The broader theological perspectives gained at ICC have helped us to operate in a multi-cultural team where theological opinions do, on occasion, differ.
